Ecotourism boost for Far North

The Palaszczuk Government has committed $2.9 million in 2019-20 out of a $5.7 million total spend to complete the seven-kilometre Mowbray North component of the Wangetti Trail, stretching from the Mowbray River to Port Douglas.

The 94-kilometre Wangetti Trail will be a leading adventure based ecotourism experience through the stunning coastal and hinterland scenery of the Wet Tropics and the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Areas.

Local and international visitors will be able to enjoy a five-night walking or a two-night mountain bike adventure, public campsites and privately-operated luxury eco-accommodation. Adventure and nature based tourism is the fastest growing tourism sector in Queensland and the Wangetti Trail is set become of the centrepiece of ecotourism for our State.

Construction and operation of the $41.4 million Wangetti Trail will create approximately 75 jobs during construction and 150 jobs once operational with a focus on employment for Traditional Owners. It is expected to generate $10.5 million per year for the Far North Queensland economy.

The trail has strong support from the local Yirranydjil and the Eastern Kuku Yalanji People. The Government is working with Traditional Owners to create multi-generational business opportunities on the trail.

Cairns Performing Arts Centre

The new Cairns Performing Arts Centre has brought world-class performances from leading national and international companies to Far North Queensland since its opening in late 2018.

The Palaszczuk Government provided $15 million to the $71.1 million Cairns Regional Council development as part of its commitment to improving regional arts infrastructure and access.

Cairns Performing Arts Centre provides a 940-seat theatre as well as 400-seat black box theatre – more than double the capacity of the Cairns Civic Centre it replaced.

Construction of the new centre created local jobs, with 90 per cent of total works and materials supplied by local businesses and 95 per cent of trade contracts going to local companies.
